DESCRIPTION

The Danish designer duo Fabricius Kastholm were masters at creating honest design that beautifully highlights what other designers often seek to hide. With its visible joints, beautiful brass fittings and accomplished craftsmanship, the Plico Chair is a great example of this. The chair was first presented in 1964 when it won the Copenhagen Cabinetmakers' Guild Furniture Prize for its outstanding craftsmanship and expression.

Plico means 'to fold' in Latin and, despite its light exterior, the chair offers supreme comfort by virtue of its soft upholstery and features an adjustable backrest that can be completely folded.

DESIGNER

Preben Fabricius (1931–1984) & Jørgen Kastholm (1931–2007) established their own design studio in 1961 and became a design duo specialised in furniture design and single-family houses. Their designs were characterised by minimalism, sophistication, functionality, quality and their eye for detail. During their seven-year partnership, Preben Fabricius and Jørgen Kastholm designs achieved widespread recognition and established their names internationally.

MATERIALS

- Frame: Oak with oil/white-oil treatment.

PREASSEMBLED

No. To assemble the chair unfold the chair, tighten the thumbscrew and place the leather strap in the position the chair is desired in. Finally, place the loose cushions in the chair.

PRODUCTION PROCESS

All wooden parts are made on machines. Then assembled, surface treated and sanded by hand. The pillow is sewn with stitches called bridles, which gives the cushion its elegant look.
